

Angelos Anagnostou

Angelos was born in 1956 in Nicosia, he grew up in Athens, where he studied Electrical Engineering and Business Administration. He has been active since 1976 in the electronics and information technology industry through various managerial positions including that of the founding member.

He was elected member of the Board of Directors and Secretary General for the Association of Greek Manufacturers of Electronics Products. He has also served as special advisor to the Athens Chamber of Small & Medium Industries and the Norwegian Embassy in Athens. He has actively participated in various business committees and several European/Greek working groups for electronics and information technology.

Today, he is the Head of Cloud Computing Services at SoftOne Technologies S.A. (member of Olympia Group) and runs a privately owned business consultancy firm.

He is participating at the Board of Directors at the Hellenic Association of Mobile Application Companies (HAMAC) as Member.